PROFILE

Creative and independent. Motivated to create well designed websites with exceptional user experience. I approach the development of software with a progressive mindset and really do thrive on exploration and experimentation. With a love for the problem solving process I always endeavour to maintain that the needs of the user as well as the business to be of top priority. I really don't believe there is a problem that can't be solved. I enjoy the design process specifically and have created nicely designed websites to a high quality standard under strict deadlines. Adept in both independent and collaborative environments, I'm eager to join a challenging workplace.
